Your Family. Your Photos. Your Stories. Barb Groth, 2017-01-19 Genealogists dedicate lots of time to uncovering their past. The three sections of this book focus on preserving and sharing your family history - Your Family, Your Photos and Your Stories. It presents steps in Each project can be approached as an offering for makerspace visitors or can be created by library employees themselves as tools to engage in outreach and promote the makerspace, library services, the institution, and more. Every project has been created and tested in a real library setting by the authors, who present lessons learned, possible variations, and different ideas on how to implement the projects to their fullest extent. Explore the idea of using the makerspace to highlight the value of other library services, or simply find new and fun ways to engage with your users. Mapping Pine Mortality by Aerial Photography, Umstead State Park, North Carolina Clarence J. DeMars,1982 In 1975-1976, pine trees killed by the southern pine beetle (Dendroctonus frontalis Zimm.) in a 2170-hectare (5362-acre) area at the William B. Umstead State Park in central North Carolina, were monitored by sequential color infrared aerial photography. From 1973 through summer 1975, beetles in 350 infestation spots killed more than 20,500 pines on 137 hectares (339 acres). From October 1975 to July 1976, an additional 301 dead pines were detected at 146 tree mortality centers. Southern pine beetles were associated with 98 percent of these dead trees. Pine mortality dropped rapidly from 248 trees killed in fall and winter at 120 spots to 9 trees killed in July at six spots. The volume of timber killed during the outbreak exceeded 16,000 m<sup>3</sup> (7500 cords) of roundwood valued at more than $240,000. Strictly speaking, this is not an economic loss because the Park's management goal is to maintain a natural forest.
